WHAT WILL STALIN OFFER?
SHALL WE BECOME PEREN-NIALS?
MUCH ABUSED BIG BUSI-NESS
DRY VIOLATION AS USUAL

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright 1930 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

President Hoover calls 60 leading citizens, representing business, industry, finance to help Walter S.
Gifford meet the unemployment problem. Such a problem calls for such ability and intelligence as we have, but "what is everybody's business is anybody's business."

Dividing responsibility among 61 is not a method that usually achieves success.

Across the ocean, Stalin, at his name we are supposed to shiver with virtuous horror, will soon offer a suggestion to improve world conditions, saying, according to international news, "This is no time for petty envy or stupid rivalry."
The present crisis affects the proletariat (workers) of all nations.
The Soviets will cooperate with capitalist countries in every honest effort to maintain peace and ensure economic welfare."

It will be interesting to see what Stalin has to suggest. In this country, we haven't any definite suggestion, except feeble charity, which amounts to nothing, and a firm determination to avoid the dole.

This is important to old ladies and gentlemen that would like to stay on earth longer than nature usually allows.

Cornell university has changed an annual plant, one that dies, and must be planted every year, into a lasting perennial, by treatment with x-rays. Man is a mixture between an annual and a perennial being, but a few winters, and then must go.

From his head to his feet, microscopic enemies, including millions of intestinal bacteria, attack man from birth. Science might find a way to attack them, and postpone the inevitable death. Sometimes it is necessary, as Lingi Cornaro, said of himself "to live to be 90 in order to know that the world is beautiful." On the average it takes us 70 years to learn that life is interesting, and nearly all of us are taken from life when it begins to be worth while.

At the institute of politics, in Williams institute, our "big business" is cruelly criticized by learned gentlemen.

The various "high brow" agree that "big business" lacks humanity,
is too much interested in dividends
and millions, not enough interested in human beings.

You feel about "big business" in these depression days as the stranger
at the funeral felt about the corpse.

When there was no response to the request "will some friend of the deceased say a few words," the stranger rose and said "I have never heard of this corpse in my life,
but I'm a friend of my man who has a few friends as he has here."

You can say for "big business,"
that at least it provides everything necessary for happiness, if the mass of human beings would take some responsibility for what is done in the country, use their brains and their votes.

"Big business" has 25,000,000
automobiles running in America, millions of bath tubs, and has raised wages from below $1 a day,
as in the time of Washington, to above $5 a day in 1929.

Curls to Match

The return of the hat sported
by the grande dames of half a century ago, has brought a "return to femininity." Coronee de Donato, at the convention of cosmeticians in Chicago, topped off with the latest in chapeaux,
is about to attach the curls
which are so much in vogue
with the hats.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIAL FEATURE OF YEARLY MEET

Outing Will Be Held At Mill Creek Park On Opening Day

The executive committee of the Christian Endeavor union of Damascus Quarterly meeting will be in charge of a social for the young people of Ohio Yearly meeting of

on the first afternoon of the Yearly meeting. Charles Wilhelm of Salem is president of the quarterly meeting union.

The committee is planning to take the young people to Mill Creek park, Youngstown, for an outing,
and will serve refreshments there.

That as many people from a distance will attend this year's sessions as were present last year, is evidenced by a report from one of the committees in charge of arrangements, that already more than 100 reservations have been made for rooms.

A group of women have been engaged to cook meals for those who attend this affair with Mrs. George Theiss, Salem, as head of the unit.
Meals will be served in the basement of the Damascus church, beginning Monday evening, for the remainder of the week. Preparations are being made to serve 90 at the first meal.

Among the visitors expected at the meeting, aside from those scheduled on the program are:
Robert L. Simpkins of New York city, returned missionary from Changai, West China; Mrs. Ruth Thurston Earl, returned missionary from India and Sara Duncan of Russville, Ind.

Miss Esther E. Baird, veteran missionary of Ohio Yearly meeting, who returned this spring from India, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Matti, who recently returned from China, will be at the meeting.

Rev. Joseph H. Smith of Redlands, Calif., widely known in this district, will preach at the evangelistic service at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday and will have the expository
hour on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 11 a. m.

Other services which always attract unusual interest are the annual Missionary on Thursday evening at which Mrs. Matti will speak, and the Young Peoples on Friday evening with a sermon by Rev. Everett L. Cattell of Springfield, formerly of Alliance, who is well known here.

Varied Events Held By Goshen Grangers

Young people of Goshen grange had charge of the program and filled the offices at a meeting of the grange Friday evening at the hall, northwest of Salem.

These numbers composed the program: Reading, "The Bewitch-ed Clock," Margaret Starbuck;

PERRY TO VOTE IN SCHOOL RACE ON NOVEMBER 3

Township Electors to Add Ballots to Those Of City Precincts

FIVE IN BOUT FOR JUSTICE PLACES

Only One Candidate In Field for Constable Post To Date

Perry township residents who are included in the city school district,
as a result of the extension of municipal educational boundaries, will cast ballots for the selection of three members of the Salem school board at the Tuesday, November 3 election.

It will be the first time in Salem
history that voters of the township will be franchised to participate in the election of board members.

Four in Race
Four candidates for board seats have already filed petitions with the county board of elections in East Liverpool. Three of these,
President F. P. Mullins, Vice President Joel H. Sharp and James H.
Wilson, are now serving on the board. The fourth, Rev. B. E.
Rutzky, pastor of the Emmanuel Lutheran church, is aspiring to his first election.

Participation of township electors in the board of education vote is expected by election officials to be total. More than 440 cast ballots in two township precincts in the 1930
state election.

Together with the election of school board members, township electors will also select members of the board of trustees and a township clerk. No candidates have as yet filed applications for any of the posts.

City and township voters will combine voting strength in the election of three justices of the peace and three constables. An interesting race is anticipated in the former fight, five candidates having already entered the competition.
Only one aspirant has filed a petition for election as constable.

Woman Justice Candidate
One woman, Mrs. Vera Bonnell
Courtney, daughter of Justice Peace Charles Bonnell, is seeking election to a similar post. Bonnell, one of the oldest active ques-ires in Ohio, has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election.

Justice Donald J. Buraw is the only incumbent seeking another term. T. R. Whinnery, O. J. As-try and Thomas Cadwallader are others who have filed petitions.

Chalmers M. Miller is the lone constable candidate who has submitted his petition to the board.

Buraw and Bonnell are the only active justices of peace serving at present. George W. Allen, elected at the 1928 balloting, has not been active and will not be a candidate in November.

None of three men now serving the township as constables, Norman H. Peters, John Kirchgessner or George Lewis, have filed petitions for additional terms. Peters is now serving as constable for the second term while Lewis and Kirchgessner received their offices by appointment through the township trustees.

Death And Desolation Ride On Crest Of Yangtse Flood

Unknown Thousands Drown in Probably Greatest Calamity in Modern History; Thirty Million or More Persons are Made Homeless

HANKOW, Aug. 22.—Death, destruction and desolation rode the crest of flood waters down the Yangtse river today causing probably the greatest calamity in modern history.

Unknown thousands had drowned,
destitute scores died daily of typhoid and dysentery while medical authorities warned that with the receding of water, probably several weeks hence, more serious epidemics will rage.

Upwards of 30,000,000 persons were said to have been made homeless by the unprecedented surge of waters in the valley. In the Wuhan cities, Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, 400,000 refugees were counted.

Hankow presented a picture of desolation. Touring the native section of this city in a boat, an Associated Press correspondent saw thousands of one-story buildings submerged under water that covers the district from 10 to 15 feet deep. Larger edifices, including part of the plant of the Standard Oil company of New York, tumbled
each hour as waters undermined foundations.

Military authorities, attempting to bring relief to refugees, fought refugees on roof tops.

Over Hankow many thousands of refugees sat on roof tops, a shroud of cloth hung overhead, scant protection against boiling sun which caused the temperatures to approach 100 degrees.

Many had been removed to safer places but other thousands refused to move, convinced Hankow was doomed, refusing help themselves or being helped and sat on their nearly submerged roofs awaiting inevitable death.

Authorities agreed they were unable to cope with the stupendous needs for emergency relief. Many thousands were doomed, they said unless immediate relief arrived.

ternational boundary being boosted

SIX ARE SLAIN AS POLICE AND BANDITS BATTLE

Payroll Robbers Killed After 12-Mile Running Gun Fight

STRAY SHOT KILLS BABY IN NEW YORK

12 Other Persons Wound- ed by Flying Bullets In $4,619 Holdup

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—A gun battle between police and two payroll robbers extending for 12 miles in streets of upper Manhattan and the Bronx and lasting an hour and a half cost six lives last evening.
Twelve other persons were wounded by bullets.

Two policemen, one robber and a taxi driver accompanying the robbers were killed outright. The other robber died in a hospital as did a baby who was hit by a stray bullet. Three policemen, two firemen, seven bystanders, including two women, were sent to hospitals with bullet wounds.

The city's 19,000 policemen were under orders today to put every unlicensed gun holder behind bars.

Paymaster Killed
Patrolman Walter D. Webb and Lloyd Fromhoff, paymaster for the Mendoza Fur & Dyeing Co., arrived in an automobile at the company's yards late yesterday. They brought a payroll of $4,619 from a bank. Two robbers accosted them.
As Webb reached for his pistol
both robbers fired, killing him.

The robbers threw Fromhoff out of the car and drove away at thirty and 163rd st. they abandoned it and got into a taxi driven by Herbert Hassel, 27, and resumed flight. At Boston Post road Motorcycle Patrolman Edward Churchill, suspicious at their dizzy speed, raced after them and fired.
Two bullets hit him in the abdomen. He fell off his machine, dead.

At Dyckman st. and Broadway,
the three policemen in the pursuing taxicab forced the bandit car against the curb. Hassel, the taxi driver was killed outright as was one of the robbers, John Prechel.
The second gunman, Martin Bachorik died a few minutes later.

The taxi used by the pursuing detectives was bullet punctured
and its windows shattered.

When a lone patrolman yanked open the bullet-marked cab, of the robbers, the package of stolen money was found intact. In the back there were 71 empty bullet shells and seven pistols.

In Greenwich Village, another policeman, Bertrand Ray, crashed into a truck while speeding serum to be used in an attempt to save the lives of the two policemen. He was taken to a hospital. His skull was fractured.

MANSFIELD, O., Aug. 22.—A bomb, tossed on a speeding automobile, rocked the plant of the

Virtually all of the windows in the

UNION LABEL

BUTLER WILL RETIRE

The picturesque tradition of the marine corps follows Major General Smedley D. Butler when he retires to private life Oct. 1. General Butler's application for retirement has not been acted on but doubtless will be approved. He spent 32 years in the service and is entitled to quit whenever he is ready.

In fact there have been several attempts to make the dashing general quit before his time but he beat all of them. He was too outspoken to please some of his fellow-officers and timid persons in other branches of the government service.

A man cannot spend 32 years in the marines, 13 of them in foreign service, without being a fighter. General Butler fought boxers in China, moros in the Philippines, Germans on the western front and anybody else with whom the United States happened to be engaged in an altercation. Philadelphia borrowed him for a period to become safety director and clean up the city. The government made him commandant at Quantico when women and whisky were threatening the morale of the barracks there and he made the waterfront safe for marines.

He wears two congressional medals for conspicuous personal bravery in action and numerous testimonials cite his fortitude in carrying out the civil duties of a military officer.

Doubtless the most spectacular figure in the contemporary military life of the country, General Butler has been popular as a public speaker and a magazine writer. His series of stories and articles now running in one popular magazine carries the forenoon that any opinions expressed are the personal observations of a private citizen and not expressions of a military officer. This is a bit of caution the general has learned from his experiences in speaking about great men and matters.

After he leaves the service this fall he may drop this defense and if he decides to talk right out in marine language there will be some exciting things to read.

The Hopi Indians, live rattlesnakes held between their teeth or wrapped about their shoulders, are dancing their frenzied ceremonies on the Arizona mesa until they drop from exhaustion and all to invoke the rain gods to save their crops. White men are unable to explain their immunity from the venom of the serpents. The rest of the world for 13 centuries has failed to crush the Moslem completely because he believes that death in battle admits him to the inner circle of Allah's love. South sea savages hurled themselves into boiling volcanoes, holy men of India torture their bodies and virgins of ancient civilizations gave themselves to the sacrificial fires all because of a supreme belief in their own particular gods.

This faith which St. Paul describes as "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" has moved men to great things since the beginning of time. Complete faith can do wonders even, as we are told, to the moving of mountains. Faith is as efficacious in secular affairs as it is in the things of religion.

If the millions embraced within the various divisions of Christianity were to express their religion in the same degree of faith with which the Hopi believes his snake dance will bring rain, the world's social and ethical problems would be nearer solution. If all the "civilized" people of the globe were to have the faith of a Mohammedan seeking the straight road to the arms of Allah by death in battle against the "infidel" nothing could be impossible.

Of course there is also a teaching that "faith without works" is dead. Given the proper faith, backed up by practical works which an honest belief inspires, economic disturbances would be wiped out, unemployment ended in a day and a new world order brought into being.

What Others Say

AND TEARS FOR SUCH AS THESE!

Lacking capital punishment, Michigan has just sent to the penitentiary for life the confessed principles in a wholesale murder so revolting as to make the crimes of the late Jesse James appear, by contrast, the pranks of a mischievous youth.

That these three brutes will remain behind the bars so long as they live seems reasonably certain. Any move for paroles or pardons, even 30 or 40 years hence, would arouse a storm of protest throughout the state.

And in the long meantime, what is going to keep these brutish fiends tractable and relatively harmless, save only the fear of certain and severe disciplinary punishment inside the prison?

Yet if the majority of the members of the Wickersham commission could have their way, if the thousands of soft-hearted men and women who have credulously accepted the commission's own credulous acceptance of the yarns of former convicts could have their way, these murderers would be protected by law from any form of prison punishment that men of their nature could understand or would heed.

These men and women who cry out against any prison disciplinary measure more drastic than a polite rebuke or suspension of radio privileges seem, for some strange reason, unable to realize that prison populations are made up largely of cruel and conscienceless monsters who, as Warden J. J. Sullivan, of Minnesota, so truly says, would as soon stick a knife through a keeper as look at him.

Consider these three men who have just entered the Michigan penitentiary. In the hope of gaining a handful of small change as loot, they are willing to club and shoot to death two boys and two young girls and set fire to their still warm bodies; yes, and to do even worse than that. But if Michigan prison officials so much as place in solitary confinement creatures capable of such horrible misdeeds, the Wickershams and their sisters will indict Michigan as cruel and barbarous.—Minneapolis Journal.

Two Sexes Share Air Record

Numerous air records have been set by men and women, working independently, but here's a case where the two sexes united to establish a new altitude record between them. Dorothy Pressler and Bill Bleakley are shown at Oklahoma City airport after they had set a new altitude mark in a "light plane." They ascended 16,090 feet to beat the old mark of 15,100. Miss Pressler is going to attack the solo altitude record for women soon.

ANOTHER DISASTROUS FLIGHT

NEW YORK
Day by Day
by O.O. McIntyre

HOMEWARD BOUND, Aug. 22—This place is a six-days-in-one windup of the travelogues. I want to stretch out on the top deck of the liner all the way across and try to smuggle through New York customs the nicest tan ever brought over the North Atlantic.

The passenger list is shuffled down to a slim handful. The only notables I have noticed so far are Frank Noyes, Washington Publisher, and Roland Hayes, the singer. Due to a blanket of fog a few miles out in the harbor our take off was held up five anxious hours.

An incoming liner, anchored the width of Fifth avenue away, was distinguishable only in asymptotic tracing—a luminously ghastly silhouette. Deck walkers ceased because of constant collisions. Fog horns groaned their two minute cacophony of despair. One joy killer donned his life belt.

A fog lifts in the quick manner of a theatrical curtain. One minute the vista is nebulous. The next, bells ring, the ship trembles and glides away in a splash of sunshine. The greatest problem of seamanship to me is how seamen maintain their appetites.

I can never cling to an otherwise luscious hunger for food more than three days. It completely vanishes and the rest of the way I nibble at nuts and fruit. The moment I set foot on land, however, I am ravenous. Seamen, I am told, are affected reversely. They eat little on shore.

Due to an abundance of empty cabins, a thoughtful ship officer transferred us to a de luxe suite fancifully named, "Saint Germaine." There is private dining room, a what-I-would-call sitting room, enormous bed room and two baths. I am leaving the front door open and sitting where I hope to be seen.

They tell of a young lady aboard returning from her first visit to Paris and who does not seem to understand that liner attendants speak English. She is also not a very good sailor. Today she rang for her steward and mumbled wanly: "Have la porter approtez my nml de mer."

There is a type of voyager in constant sartorial exhalation. In the morning he appears in flannels and brass buttoned blue sport coat. Later in a business suit, then a golf costume for deck walking, dinner suit and for gala night full dress. At night he may round the deck in pajamas and house robe. Each day's costumes are entirely different. Not even the roughest sort of sea squelches his ardor. I often wonder where such enthusiasts came from, what they do and if they get any fun out of it. One shirt will last me an ocean and a creek.

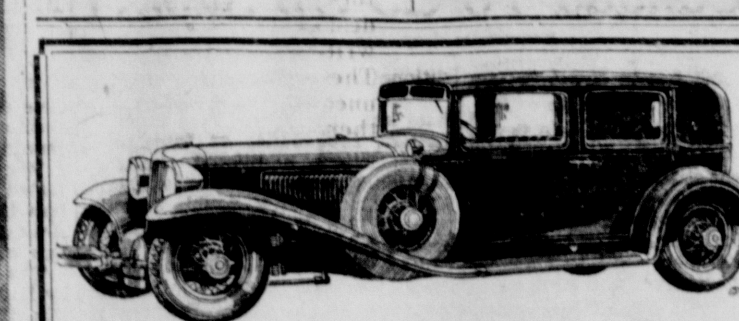

Huge mugs of beer on the transatlantic boats are six cents in American coin and the ordinary glass of beer three cents. Cocktails are around 30 cents. It seems most American ladies order a cocktail called the Side Car.

Tucked away in many huge steamers are tiny half-lit chapels providing a sober contrast to bridge and drinking rooms and the sportive fair of the decks. I passed the one on this boat at the vesperal hour. Through the gloom faintly was the white altar of the Virgin. A thin youthful voice was singing Gounod's "Ave Maria." A gentleman in a checked suit, gaudy cap and with a huge cigar stuck in his head, quickly removed his cap and cigar and a half hour later when I passed again was standing there, immovable, transfixed.

I became totally absorbed, too, at dinner in the serving of a drink or order for a pair of young honeymooners and their two guests. First was brought fresh raw peaches imbedded in a tray of ice. With silver prongs a peach was dropped into tall highball glasses and over them was poured sparkling champagne. Placed before the diners, each began prodding the peach with the prongs of a long fork and then they drank. It seemed to hit the bull's eye for 20 minutes all were gleefully and talking thick.

Every time a ship nears Quarantine I'm taut with anxiety until anchor is lifted again. I'm always afraid health officers will discover I am just about to bust out with beriberi or bubonic plague. And off I go to a barbed-wired isolation camp. But already we are nosing up the North River and in an hour will be bowling along New York streets. And I'm likely to neck a few lamp posts enroute.

HEALTH

BE SURE MILK IS PURE

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.

There is always something new in disease. For the past three or four years those interested in public health have been studying the problem of "undulant fever."

Undulant fever is an infectious disease due to a germ called the "Bacillus abortus," or "Brucella abortus." It attacks cattle, sheep, goats and pigs, and may be transmitted to human beings who care for these animals, or who engage in slaughtering them. Persons who are particularly susceptible may develop the disease by drinking milk of the infected animals.

It is said that twenty percent of our cattle are affected with this particular infection. This percentage is sufficiently high to demand great caution. It is important to see that proper tests are made of cows in every herd from which comes the public milk supply.

Efficient pasteurization destroys the undulant fever germ and other obnoxious germs. It is not sufficient to depend wholly upon pasteurization. Milk should be made safe before and after pasteurization, by keeping it absolutely clean and in a temperature not above fifty degrees Fahrenheit. Good milk, the best milk you can obtain, is preeminently the best food. If you value health, nothing but the best will do.

Apparently undulant fever does not attack children. But it is not wise to take the slightest risk when it comes to food. The babies and children, at any rate, must be given milk which is above suspicion. Be careful to obtain your milk from sources which you know to be reliable. Be sure it comes from dairies which are carefully inspected. Get the milk which you are sure has taken the least possible time to travel from the farm to your door. Get the very best grade of milk for drinking purposes.

Even though milk prices soar, see that your kiddies drink a quart of good milk every day. The adult may get along on a pint, because he takes many other protein foods. But give the kiddies lots of pure milk of the best kind you can buy. In the long run, the best is a saving in money and in health.

The Stars Say —

For Sunday, Aug. 23

Sunday's horoscope emphasizes things of the spirit, the mystical, marvelous, irregular and unusual, according to the lunar trine to Neptune, dominating the day's affairs. Affairs secret, subtle and singular may intrigue, but with possible friction in the personal relation or contacts.

If It's Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of unusual, singular or intriguing events and experiences, which may redound to its through these, as with negotiations with secret bodies, mergers, rings, or other undercurrent associations. New undertakings are under encouraging sway. A child born on this day may be inclined to secret, subtle and curious adventures, which may redound to its profit and advancement if not to its personal happiness.

For Monday, Aug. 24

Monday's astrological forecast is not a very happy or propitious one, although it holds signs of great activity and commotion. There are signs of turmoil and turbulence, sudden and ill-advised moves and disruptions, danger of employment agitations and many stubborn obstructions and delays to be encountered. The most optimistic configurations show an exceedingly alert and discerning mind, which may be able to devise ways and means to offset these perils, but with prudence and wariness as well as wisdom.

Those whose birthday it is may be visited by a year calling for all their wisdom, sagacity and prudence to surmount stubborn obstacles, disruptive situations, disputes, quarrels, violence and turbulence. The mind will be found excellently stimulated and enlightened to cope with this perilous state of affairs. A child born on this day should be versatile, clever, keen, quick and shrewd, qualities needed to cope with its many obstacles in life.

Flower of Thorns

SYNOPSIS

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and suicide of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. A porter's lodge, facing the Dixie highway, gives her the idea of starting a hot dog stand. She arranges with a milkman, who says he is Mr. Forman, foreman of the Winstead dairies, to deliver milk. He is really Forman Winstead, only son of Henry Winstead, town banker and holder of the Oakleigh mortgage. The Rutherford ladies "didn't know" the Winsteads, of carpetbagging stock, whose seats adjoined Oakleigh. Sally's milkman helps her to make the shack a success before she discovers his identity. By that time she is receiving the court of Lowndes Jennings, "a man of her own class." Lowndes takes Sally to his apartment to look at ancient glass she wants to buy for a customer. Unexpected callers come and Sally is thrust into the valet's bedroom. Lowndes' guests joke him about a rich fiancé.

Mr. Sam Winstead walked into the room.

"I wish I could!" said Lowndes, sincerely. "I have gotten myself into a false position. Lowndes, I didn't realize it until I found I was in Eph's bedroom. I had to sit there quite a while, you know. It made me think. And I thought it belittled both of us to seem so—clandestine. Would not it have been better to let me stay right out here and tell them all the exact truth? That I'd come to look at that glass, and, besides, that you and I are engaged?"

INSTALLMENT 17
A TRAITOROUS LOVER
Sally had heard, some words she had missed, but she had been sitting with her head leaning against the bolted door, and she heard enough to learn that people were saying Lowndes was to marry Miss Gertrude Reinert. He was going to the Bahamas in the Reinert yacht. He and the wealthy young lady were very good pals. He had told her so. She felt no ease. When the young men had gone, and the last sound of their descending footsteps had died away, Sally opened the door of Eph's room and stepped into the living room. She had on her hat and carried her coat over her arm. "I sat with my head leaning against the door, so I'd know when they left. I couldn't help hearing a good deal of what they said," she said directly. "They seem to think you're engaged to Miss Reinert, don't they, Lowndes? I recognized Rodney Hall's voice, naturally." "Braying ass! He certainly loves to gossip, doesn't he?" "Does he know Miss Reinert very well?" "Will you consider me a gossip, too, if I say that I was told he had pretensions to Miss Reinert and a second's hesitation. "I—I was foolish enough to hide. If I'd stopped for a moment to reflect I wouldn't have done so—why should I? But you must know what Rodney Hall is?" she finished, a bit lamely. "I can well imagine what a yarn he'd spin in Miss Gertrude Reinert's ears if he discovered another pretty lady late-a-tete with her fiancé," said Sam Winstead. "I was in New York a few days ago on business and I ran into Miss Gertrude and her mother, Jennings. They were on a shopping tour and were stopping at my hotel. I squired them a bit. Mrs. Reinert told me she and her husband were planning to announce their daughter, Gertrude's engagement to you as soon as they returned from the Bahamas. Now that the subject has come up, I suppose I'm to congratulate you?"

For her own sake he averted his eyes from Sally. He could not bear to see her stricken face. He had to hurt her cruelly, he knew, and he could have cheerfully strangled Lowndes for it. He kept his eyes mercilessly on Lowndes. The young man was fairly caught, as Sam meant him to be. He opened and closed his mouth; his face went red, then white; turned mottled; went white again, and stayed so. He was cornered and he knew it. He looked at his tormentor venomously, with naked hatred. "Was that why you paid me this unexpected call, to ask me personal questions about my own private affairs?" He tried to speak coldly, with sarcasm. In spite of his efforts his face betrayed agitation.

Sam looked at him with pretended astonishment. "Reinerts are, in a way, friends of mine. My dad thinks the world of Mr. Reinert. Mrs. Reinert herself confided the news to me, and Miss Gertrude heard what her mother told me, and didn't deny it. She seemed to believe the truth of it, and so did I. Naturally, then, I ask if I'm to congratulate you?"

Involuntarily, Lowndes, then raised his gray eyes to Sally's staring brown ones. Shame, anger, agony, along with a sort of sullen and dogged determination, was in his glance. Standing there as if frozen, she longed to cry aloud: "Tell this crazy man the truth. Lowndes, make him understand that you're engaged to me; that there's some dreadful mistake, because just as soon as we can manage it we mean to get married. Tell him I'm your promised wife, it is I whom you love!" Something above her will kept her silent, while the dreadful words banged about her ears like missiles. She waited for his denial of the preposterous assertion that he was bound to another woman and for his declaration of love and loyalty to herself, and did not speak. The three of them remained silent, as though under some horrid, dumb spell.

"Well," Sam was the first to break the evil silence. "Lowndes!" Sally found her voice and then called to him frantically. "Tell him the truth—that you're bound to me—not to anybody else! It's time now for the truth to be told, Lowndes!"

"Everywhere I go I hear the same rumor. The young lady's mother confirmed it, the young lady herself doesn't deny it. It only remains for you to confirm it, Jennings," said Sam, mercilessly. He would force Lowndes' hand. Sally must hear his affirmation or denial from his own lips. Either way, Lowndes stood to lose. And still he didn't speak. He couldn't. If he had ventured upon words just then he could have given utterance only to a string of profanity. O, damn this fellow for playing him such a trick! (Copyright, 1931, By Marie Conway Oemler.)

"My darling, I couldn't think clearly," he said, with every appearance of honesty. "I could only think of you. I was afraid for you, Sally. I didn't know who they might be, but I simply couldn't bear the idea of the slightest gossip about you. I—I am horribly sensitive and jealous where you are concerned, Sally. I love you so much, my queen!" He was so handsome, he spoke with so much feeling, his magnetic gray eyes looked at her with so much adoration, that the girl's heart that loved him melted. When he held out his arms to her, hungrily, she walked into them.

The downstairs bell didn't ring, but there came a peremptory knock at the door which opened upon the veranda. Eph came out of the pantry, glanced dubiously at his master, and moved slowly forward toward the door. But Sally stood motionless beside Lowndes. No matter what happened, or who came, she would sit no more in a colored man's bedroom. Eph opened the door. Mr. Sam Winstead walked into the room.

It was the first time Sally had seen Sam Winstead in evening clothes, and she admitted, with a faint surprise, that he was really handsome and very distinguished. At sight of her, he bowed with an easy, smiling grace. If he was surprised to see her there, he did not show it. But his eyes met Lowndes Jennings' with a swordlike directness.

Lowndes' polite greeting was not without a hint of surprise. Plainly, he had not expected this visitor, and he was astonished to see him. At the same time he wished him to the devil—he had no reason to like Sam Winstead. He wondered, with an impotent anger, if this night's unlucky misadventures would never end. What in the name of ten thousand devils brought this fellow here? Was every unwelcome person he knew to bounce in upon him tonight? He understood, acutely, that Sam Winstead was one of the men who knew more about him than any man should know about another. Sam Winstead had been present at the most unfortunate and humiliating incident in Lowndes' career, and although Winstead had never revealed his knowledge and had remained absolutely silent, Lowndes felt that he was inimical. He had quietly but consistently avoided all further contact with the handsome and popular Mr. Jennings whenever it could be done without arousing comment.

"I came to examine some glass in Mr. Jennings' possession," Sally said, looking at Sam directly with her truthful brown eyes. "It is exactly what a valued customer of mine wants. Mr. Jennings thinks his cousin would be willing to sell it to me, as she really cares nothing about it."

Sam thought her unusually lovely tonight. As transparent as a crystal vase. A very rage of anger, cold, slow anger, rose in his heart against Jennings because of her. Hound! Cur! Liar! The reason for his coming hardened into irrevocable determination in his mind. "That's fine," he told Sally, easily. "Do sit down and wait a few minutes more, Miss Rutherford. I'm passing Oakleigh, and I'll drive you home, if you're willing—and Mr. Jennings doesn't object." He smiled at them both charmingly, but somehow Lowndes felt that that offer of his was a command, and his choleric rose. Also his uneasiness. He had never liked Sam Winstead, sensing in his mere presence a silently contemptuous estimate of himself. Now he knew that he hated him. Had the man known that Sally was here? Had he, indeed, come for Sally?

"O, thank you, Mr. Winstead, but Mr. Jennings is going to drive me home."

Mr. Winstead looked at her thoughtfully. Then he looked at Lowndes. He said mildly: "I met Rod Hall and his crowd on the sidewalk, just getting out as I was about to come in. They told me you had a headache, Jennings, and that's why they were leaving so early; they'd rather expected to make a night of it. But they neglected to tell me you were here, Miss Rutherford. I thought Jennings was alone, and as I—ah—had—ah—something I wanted to talk over with him, I decided to come up." His look was again swordlike as it met and held Lowndes'.

"They didn't see me; they didn't know I was here," said Sally, after

Return to Victorian Bustle Is Fashion's Edict for Autumn

Wasp Waists, Leg-o'-Mutton Sleeves, Ostrich Plumes and a Modernized Version of the Bustle Will Be Notably Featured in the Styles for the Coming Fall.

BUSTLE EFFECT According to Amos Parrish, internationally famous style expert, the fashion trend for the coming Fall will be a reversion to the styles popular in the 90's. Already "Empress Eugenie" hats with their saucy ostrich plumes have won immense popularity, and a mild form of mutton-leg sleeves has made its appearance, as have the old-time basque waists. But the modern version of grandma's bustle is the piece de resistance of the feast prepared by fashion creators. This half-century-old dish, cooked according to the modern recipe, will merely suggest the ample, rigid contraption which kept time to the music as the grandmas swayed gracefully through the mazes of the stately mazurka. The new bustle will be fashioned of ribbons and drapes without stiffening of any kind. The new styles are not intended for street wear, but will be "the rage," 'tis said, for evening and formal afternoon gowns. Thus we find woman, the omnipotent, once more proves her power by throwing the wheels of progress into reverse.

Rules Are Issued For Air Contests

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—Regulations designed to prevent accidents and collisions in the national air races at Cleveland, Aug. 29 to Sept. 7, were issued today by Assistant Secretary of Commerce Clarence M. Young, in charge of commercial aviation. The regulations forbid aircraft except participating planes to fly over the Cleveland municipal airport during scheduled events of the races. They also prohibit any planes from approaching the airport except for landing. The field has been divided into two sections, one for racing planes and the other for scheduled air-mail, air transport, visiting planes, and contesting planes when not competing in scheduled events. No airplane taking off from the commercial landing area will be to cross the line into the area where the races are held. Likewise, contesting planes are forbidden to cross the line into the commercial landing section and no contesting plane will be allowed to take off toward the grand stand.

Babylonian Gardens in Mid-Air Feature of 'Radio City' Project

Velvety Lawns...Luxurious Flowers...Splashing Fountains and Stately Trees Will Form Wonder-Gardens Atop Buildings Comprising Twenty-five-Million-Dollar Rockefeller Project in New York

A replica of the Hanging Gardens of Babylon in the heart of New York, sixty stories above the ground, is one of the novel features of the gigantic Radio City development. The gardens will be truly Babylonian in type conforming to the set-back architecture. Each of the terraces, where space permits, will have its lawn, its flowers and its fountain and from the sixty-six story tower of Radio City, the highest building the surrounding group will look like one huge mass of verdure. The new plans call for many changes in the original specifications, chief among them being the elimination of the much criticized "pill-box" building. In its place will be two low buildings of lines more in keeping with the general plan. It is believed that these two structures will be occupied by the French and British governments. Another new feature is the plan for the largest theatre in the world, seating 6,500 persons and costing $7,000,000. The theatre will be connected with the other buildings by a series of viaducts high above the street. This air view of the site of Radio City shows its magnitude.

TRINITY LUTHERAN
East State st. at Woodland ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor. Twelfth Sunday after Trinity—Sunday school 9:45 (Acts 11:5-18) H. E. Smith, superintendent.

"The Gospel of Jesus Christ has its appeal to all classes and conditions of humanity. The very fact that conversions and zealous followers are found in every country and that the new territories are brought to the feet of Jesus is strong testimony that the Gospel of the Savior is not bounded by time or space. It took a revelation from God to demonstrate to the Jewish people that the Gentiles were also included within the grace of a loving heavenly Father. Herein is found the basis for Foreign, Home and Inner Missions.

"We as Christian people dare not feel content at being saved, we must do all within our power and ability that darkened and heathen countries are brought to know the way of salvation through Christ. Jesus Christ is a world Savior. He belongs neither to Jew nor Gentile alone, nor to Protestant, Greek Catholic, or Roman Catholic alone. He belongs to all humanity."

There will be no preaching services Sunday morning. The Collect for this Sunday is a prayer that stresses the common needs for all humanity:

"Almighty and Merciful God, of whose only gift it cometh that Thy Faithful people do unto Thee true and laudable service: Grant, we beseech Thee, that we fail not finally to attain Thy heavenly promises; through Jesus Christ, Thy Son, our Lord, who liveth and reigneth with Thee and the Holy Ghost, ever one God, world without end."

There's Nothing So Cheap as—

There is no dollar I expend That brings back more to me Than does the dollar that I spend For Electricity! I never think my bills are high Though some folks think they're steep, There's not a thing that I can buy That comes to me as cheap!

There is no service on this earth, From food to coal to ice— That gives me greater money's worth, However low its price! And there's no service, barring none, That Mankind can procure, To work for us from sun to sun Of which we are so sure.

When I go home at eventide, A magic wand I wave— And I am served on every side By this unfailing slave. There is no gentler of my dreams, That better needs my wand— It NEVER fails, or so it seems, At all times to respond!

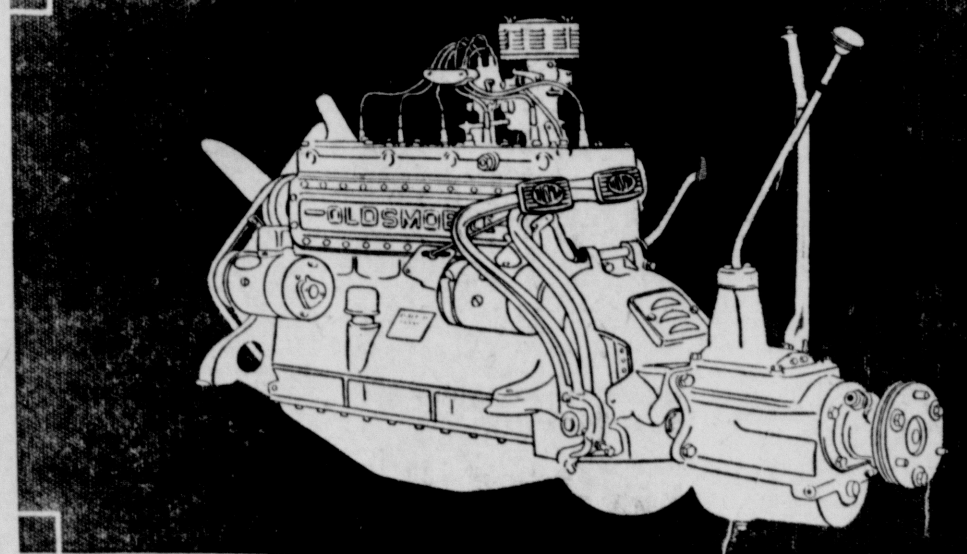

And so I say I'm glad to pay My light bills, all the while They pay for that which night and day Contributes to my smile. Some bills are like a bitter pill— My bank account they wreck, But when I pay my electric bill I smile to sign the check!

THE HOME KITCHEN

Home-Cooked Meat Jellies

"Is calf's foot jelly very difficult to make?" asks one young bride, eager to display her skill by bringing this home-made delicacy to an invalid relative.

It really is not much of a job, except that it requires long cooking. But once one gets the idea, it is simple to prepare quite a variety of such meat jellies—calf's foot, chicken, veal—and even the flavors can be different. If the household is fortunate enough to possess some old sherry or port or rum, the jelly will be that much better. Otherwise fruit juices can be used.

Calf's Foot Jelly

1 calf's foot
1 quart cold water
2 egg whites and shells
1/2 cup sugar
3 cups sherry (or orange juice)
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Salt.

Place the cleaned calf's foot in a saucepan, cover with the quart of cold water and put over a low flame until it comes to boiling point. Let simmer for 5 hours, skimming occasionally. Strain, set aside to cool, then skim off all fat. Stir together other ingredients and add to the liquid. Reheat until it reaches boiling point, then quickly remove. Do not allow to boil. Strain through several thicknesses of cheesecloth or a jelly bag. Do not stir. Merely let the liquid drip through, so that it will be clear when firm. Pour into jars, and leave in a cold place until ready to use.

Beef Jelly

Place 4 pounds of shinbone beef and an equal amount of cracked shinbone in an earthen baking dish or jar, and cover with 4 quarts of cold water. Place inside a slow oven for 8 hours, then strain, cool and remove fat. Add salt to taste and pour into small jars to harden. Leave in a cold place until ready to use.

Heirlooms of 1931

A young member of some far-off generation will take down a piece of stemmed glassware from a cupboard . . . "Look, they used this glass on their daily table." . . . He will lift a length of glowing drapery from a chest: "They used this curtain at their window."

Heirlooms such as these will indicate to them our 1931 civilization. But there will be another record—the pages of our newspapers and magazines. Here in advertisements they will read of everything worthy that is possessable today. They will sense the countless shops that carry these offerings . . . the endless labor in factories, improving, perfecting things.

Likely enough they will marvel a little that you can buy goods so fresh ("This mayonnaise might have just been made in your kitchen") . . . so carefully prepared ("It took us three years to perfect this cream") . . . so dependable ("This cigarette has always the same satisfying fragrance") . . . so recent ("Only the other day this diamond bracelet came to this country").

Perhaps those far-off readers will want to make some of these purchases themselves—and won't be able to, because of time and distance intervening. But you can! You do! Neither time nor distance deters you. Here it is—anything you wish to buy. Home-spun tweeds from Scotland . . . breakfast flakes from the sunny wheatlands in the West.

There is romance back of every advertised good thing. Romance of change, of the ceaseless effort at perfection. Advertisements are true mirrors of the best to be had today. They give you an easy, happy survey of all that is buyable. They help keep you chic in yourself, your surroundings, every inch of your purchasing . . . Read them and remember their news.

THE DAY In Sports

STREET PROVES OLD ADAGE SUCCEEDS WITH CARDINALS

MAJOR league baseball players believe there will be a general cut in salaries next winter—and their belief appears well founded. The magnates, encouraged by the success of their "hold-outs" last spring, are casting about for means to cut down overhead and it will not be surprising to find that they have made a general agreement to cut salaries.

Most baseball magnates contend that salaries soared to impossible heights during the "lively ball" era, and naturally enough they place much of the blame for the high salaries upon Babe Ruth and the publicity given his high salaries.

Ruth may be one of the first victims of the campaign to reduce salaries. His $300,000 contract expires at the close of the season and it is rumored that the Yankees will ask him to accept a one-year contract for 1932 at a much lower figure.

The Babe has been playing the finest ball of his career this year in an attempt to win a contract renewal and says he will quit baseball if his salary is reduced next year.

Taking the liveliness out of the ball has given club owners good excuse to cut salaries. Barring averages this season are far below those of recent seasons and even though the reduction may be largely due to the change in the ball the players can hardly be expected to be paid on the basis of the near 400 performances of other years.

One of the chief victims of the "deadened" ball is Hack Wilson of the Chicago Cubs, who has been transformed from a $35,000 star to an ordinary player. Hack's failure to hit this season, and his frequent excursions to the bench, make it certain that Hack will be asked to take a salary cut in 1932, whether he remains with the Cubs or is traded.

Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics also may do some salary cutting, although he faces difficulties in doing so. If the Athletics go on to win the American League pennant and a third consecutive world's championship many of the stars will expect raises instead of salary cuts. Mack has no intention of increasing his present payroll of more than $300,000 and may get rid of several high salaried men to meet his stockholder's demands for increased profits.

Shires Holds Lead In League Batting

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Batting slumps may come and go, but Charles Arthur Shires, Milwaukee's first baseman, has managed to dodge them and appears headed for the individual hitting crown of the American association.

The great man held to his average of .387 while his leading rival Bevo LeBourveau, of Columbus, lost 7 points to spoil their tie for top position, according to semi-official averages which include games of Wednesday. Tom Angley, Indian catcher, had an average of .404, but has played in 90 games, to 123 by Shires.

Jap Track Star

Suichiro Tsuda, Japanese national marathon champion and the first foreign athlete to arrive for the Olympic games of 1932 at Los Angeles, is shown starting active training. Tsuda will remain in Los Angeles until next August, training and helping prepare for strong Japanese participation in the Olympics. He's Nippon's principal hope in the distance events.

Good Guards Plentiful; Rank As Pre-season League Favorites

SPTS-2 GIRARD
EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a series of stories on top-ranking college football teams.

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—With 17 out of 23 letter men from last year's undefeated team back, Michigan's football prospects are perhaps the brightest in the Big Ten.

Most of the stars, who enabled Michigan to tie Northwestern for the Big Ten football championship last year, will wear the Maize and Blue again and will be reinforced by a flock of high-powered sophomores, some of them certain to play regularly.

Hudson Captains Team
The letter men returning are Captain Roy Hudson, of Girard, fullback; Mutt De Baker, Harry Eastman and Bill Heston, halfbacks; Harry Newman and Estel Tessler, quarterbacks; Doc Morrison, center; Omer La Jeunesse and Leslie Douglas, guards; Howard Auer, Wally Miller and Tom Samuels, tackles; Roddy Cox, Norman Daniels, Bill Hewitt, Stan Hozer and Ivan Williamson, ends.

Although there five letter men back, Ted Petoskey, a sophomore, is likely to win a regular berth at one end. Hewitt and Williamson probably will play the other end, with Hozer, who was transferred from the backfield to the line last year, and Cox converted from a fullback, likely to be used at other positions.

Star Tackles Back
Auer and Samuels probably will be first-string tackles, with Leslie Frisk from last year's "B" squad; Fred Globest, who was out part of last season; and a pair of sophomores, Ted Chapman Cecil Cantrill, available as reserves.

There are a lot of good guards on the squad: La Jeunesse, a regular last year, probably will win one job, with Hozer, who played guard before he was shifted end; Oehlmann and Marcovsky, squad men last year, and several others bidding for the other berth.

Doc Morrison, rated as one of the best centers in the country last year will take care of the pivot job. Two of the men who will be missed most are Capt. Ducky Simrall and Jack Wheeler, last year's halfbacks, who alternated as punters. Sophomores instead of letter men probably will win the regular halfbacks' berths. The leading candidates are Herman Everhardus, Stan Fay, Fred Ratterman, Bill Reiter and Jack Heston, second son of Willie Heston, and considered a better player than his brother Willie, who made a letter last year. Everhardus, a punter and passer, seems slated for a regular job.

Newman and Tessler will divide the quarterback job, with the former likely to be rated as the first-string man. Newman was one of the best passers in the conference last year. Two sophomores, Harry Stinespring and Donald Rock, also are quarterback candidates.

Captain Hudson will be at fullback, as X-rays show that he will be able to return despite his recent illness. Duval Goldsmith, a giant Virginian, probably will substitute for Hudson.

Coach Harry Kipke's material seems to be the best and most plentiful of any Big Ten team and the Wolverines are likely to be pre-season favorites for the championship.

Michigan's schedule follows:
Oct. 3—Mt. Pleasant Technical and Ypsilanti Technical (double-header) at Ann Arbor.
Oct. 10—Chicago at Ann Arbor.
Oct. 17—Ohio State at Ann Arbor.
Oct. 24—Illinois at Urbana.
Oct. 31—Princeton at Phinneyton.
Nov. 7—Indiana at Ann Arbor.
Nov. 14—Michigan State at Ann Arbor.
Nov. 21—Minnesota at Ann Arbor.

Rated as one of America's foremost gridiron strategists, "Jock" Sutherland, the University of Pittsburgh's dentist-coach starts his seventh season at Pitt when the 1931 campaign gets under way next month.

Facing one of the stiffest schedules in Pitt history, Sutherland will have available five of his 1930 team's leading performers. He looks forward to another successful season but is far from making any optimistic predictions concerning such games as Notre Dame, Army, Nebraska and Carnegie Tech.

Plenty of Salem fans will trek to the Pitt stadium during the season to witness his proteges in action.

RUTH HITS 600TH HOMER AS YANKS DEFEAT BROWNS

Blow Starts New York Off to Batting Rally; Cleveland Loses

(By Associated Press)

Babe Ruth has made 600 home runs in his major league career.

In the third inning of the Yankee-St. Louis game yesterday he drove one of George Blaicholder's offerings far over the bleacher roof at Sportsman's park. It was his 35th four-bagger of the current season and brought his total for the 18 years of his major league career up to 600, a mark never before attained or even threatened by any other major leaguer.

Gives Boy Reward

The Babe reclaimed the pellet from the youngster who found it out in Grand Boulevard, giving in exchange $10 reward and a new autographed ball.

The homer started the Yanks off on the winning rally in their 11-7 victory over the Browns Lou Gehrig duplicated the feat a moment later.

Philadelphia's champion Athletics and the Chicago White Sox hammered out 24 hits between them and although the Sox had a 14-10 edge in the hitting, Philadelphia won 15 to 12.

Indians Lose, 6-3

Washington's batters rammed out a total of 15 hits off Clint Brown and Pete Jablonowski to take the fourth game of the series from Cleveland, 6 to 3, after losing the first three.

Boston and Detroit produced fewer hits in their clash but seven bases on ball off Eddie Durkara and Wiley Moore more than made up for the absence of blows and the Red Sox tossed in five errors to make things easy for the Tigers to walk off with an 11 to 5 triumph.

Joe Sewell (left), third baseman, and Lou Gehrig, first sacker of the New York Yankees, are two of three major leaguers who have played in 1,000 or more consecutive major league games. The third man is Everett Scott, who, as a Yankee player, made the present mark of 1,307 consecutive games. Sewell, as a member of the Cleveland Indians, played in 1,102 games without missing. Gehrig started his long string of just over 1,000 games June 1, 1925.

KIWANIS, CHINA TEAMS STILL IN TITULAR BATTLE

Three Tied for Third In Softball League; Race More Complex

The struggle for the championship flag in the Salem Softball League became more complex today as the Kiwanis club and Salem China company teams advanced into ties for third place with the Colonial Billiards. Seven teams still claim a chance to pull through with the league flag.

The Kiwanians trounced the American Laundry, 7-2, while the Pottery duplicated that score in defeating the Community Service Station combine at Centennial park field Friday. Hard hitting by winning teams was a feature.

Mullins continued to top the circuit but is but one-half game in front of the Hardware and only a single game ahead of the trio of aggregations sharing third honors. Eliminations are expected in games billed in the league next week.

RUTH LEADS LEAGUE IN HOMERS; MORGAN IS THIRD IN BATTING

Al Simmons climbs Ahead In League Race; Tribe Tops All Teams

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—Babe Ruth finally climbed back onto the home run throne of the American League during the past week, but he dropped to 14 points back of Al Simmons of the Athletics, in the individual batting struggle, according to semi-official averages which include Thursday's games.

Simmons Injured

Simmons suffered a wrenched ankle late last week, but his mark of 385 was good enough to keep him up in front, and the Babe accommodated him by losing 9 points to 371. Simmons also led in hits with 174. Ruth's home run total was 34, more than he had a week ago, and was just good enough to move him ahead of Lou Gehrig, the leading all-around offensive star.

Gehrig had 33 home runs; led in bringing in runs with 131; had scored 122 times himself, and was well ahead in total bases with 311. Roy Johnson of Detroit, had 14 triples to lead, and Earl Webb of Boston, still hopped the field in two base hits with 51, although he failed to get one of his favorite blows during the period. Ben Chapman of the Yankees, stole only one base, but it gave him 45 and a huge lead over the field.

Morgan Ranks Third

Other leading regulars following Simmons and Ruth were: Morgan, Cleveland, 355; Webb, Boston, 350; Gehrig, New York, 347; West, Washington, 344; Cochran, Philadelphia, 340; Averill, Cleveland, 338; Alexander, Detroit, 336; and Goslin, St. Louis, 333.

Cleveland broke its team batting leadership with New York, boosting its mark two points to 297, while the Yanks were slipping to a second place tie with Washington at 293. The Athletics remained as the best fielding club with an average of .976, a point off from last week. The Browns clicked off 9 double plays and had 132 to lead.

Today's Pattern

A deep bodice yoke shaped to suggest a bolero is a style feature of many important new models, and it is particularly successful in this frock where the contrasting yoke is softened by shirring. A belt matching the yoke material marks the waistline. This model is lovely in black with a black and white print, or in satin or crepe, combined with a yoke and sleeves of contrasting shade, or in matching chiffon or georgette. The softer cottons would also be suitable. Long sleeves are included in Pattern 2184.

Obtainable only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39 inch material 1 1/2 yards contrasting. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

The new fall catalog is now ready. It features the newest in afternoon, sports and house dresses, lingerie, pajamas and kiddies' clothes.

Big Money Mystery

Hailed as the "Savior of Labrador" because of her offer to lend Newfoundland's government $109,000,000 to tide it over the hard time it is having, Miss Jeanette Lewis, a former "Kitchen director" at Greenwich Village, New York, has mystified financial experts by her declaration that she was backed by powerful interests. A canvass of the big money men of the country disclosed the fact that none had any knowledge of the vast holdings which Miss Lewis claims she has at her command.

Not Going to Marry Film Star Declares

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 22.—Gloria Swanson declared today upon her return from a European trip, that she does not intend to be married again.

Despite the fact that F. Michael Farmer, Irish millionaire, was a fellow traveler on shipboard and train, Miss Swanson considers him only a friend, she said.

"Every time I am seen with the same man more than once, people begin to think I'm trembling on the brink of matrimony," Miss Swanson complained. She recently was divorced from the Marquis De La Falaise, known in Hollywood as "Hank."

"Mr. Farmer and I were together several times on the French Riviera, and he also was a member of our party coming back. But I am not engaged to him or anyone else."

Miss Swanson was met at the train in Pasadena by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and his wife, Joan Crawford. Farmer remained on the train to Los Angeles.

ROUEN.—Lady Douglas Haig has just presented to Monsignor de la Villerabel, archbishop of Rouen, prime of Normandy, a purse of $2,000 collected among English people to help towards the memorial chapel to Joan of Arc to be erected on the market place of this city.

Will Rogers Plays Lead Role In State Theater Attraction

"Young As You Feel" Will Play for Three Days Starting Sunday

As famous for his outstanding talking picture performances as he is for his witty but philosophical journalistic sayings, which appear daily in The News, Will Rogers, one of America's most widely known personages appears in the featured role of "Young As You Feel", the State Theater's feature attraction for three days starting Sunday.

Dramatic Comedy

Fifi Dorsay and Lucien Littlefield carry leading supporting characterizations to Rogers in the comedy, a story of a dyspeptic old widower who suddenly, aided by several glasses of champagne, changes his drab existence to become a colorful character who participates regularly in the speedy night club life of the day.

Donald Dillaway, Terrance Ray and Lucile Brown are others in the cast.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., famous son of a famous father, plays the starring role in "Chances", appearing at the Grand Monday and Tuesday. Rose Hobart, Anthony Herbert, Mary Forbes and Holmes Herbert are other players of note appearing in the drama.

War-time Film

"Chances" is adapted from the widely known novel of the same name, written by the famed war novelist, A. Hamilton Gibbs. The story deals with the wartime romance of two youthful soldiers in love with the same girl.

"The Common Law," featuring Joel McCrea, Lew Cody and Constance Bennett will appear at the State Wednesday and Thursday. Hedda Hopper, Marion Shilling (she of "Donovan's Kid" fame), Paul Ellis and Walter Walker round out an exceptional cast.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, the synchronized screen's greatest comedians, appear as an added attraction at the Grand on Wednesday and Thursday. They star in "Chickens Come Home." The feature picture of the two days is "Arizona."

Former Gragger Starred

Laura La Plante, who first won screen fame in "Showboat," John Wayne and June Clyde are the leading players. Wayne, former

Will Rogers is starred in "Young As You Feel," talkie comedy drama which opens a three-day stay at the State theater Sunday.

grid star with the University of Southern California. Is shown as a football hero in a story made dramatic by a double love interest.

"Just A Gigolo" shows William Haines in a new screen role, playing opposite Irene Parcell with C. Aubrey Smith and Yola D'Avril in supporting roles. The plot concerns a ne'er do well English lord whose uncle refuses to finance his idlings further and consents only to support him if he marries the girl that he picks out for the wayward youngster.

The big day at the Grand for kiddies and those grownups who like plenty of action comes with the return of Hoot Gibson and Sally Eilers in another dramatic western. It's "Clearing the Range," playing Friday and Saturday.

Today "Son of India," featuring Ramon Navarro, closes a two-day run at the State. Joe E. Brown is the star in "Broadminded" at the Grand.
